Investing for Current Income

Where can you find investments structured for current income today?

- Not with bank savings or CD's
- Stock Market is volatile & unpredictable
- Bond can lose value as Federal Reserve continues to increase interest rates

Ever wonder who owns the building occupied by companies like Home Depot, Amazon, Wal-Mart, Banks, large office buildings, apartment properties, storage centers?

Many of these companies do not own the properties they occupy – they lease their properties and pay monthly income to large well managed real estate companies including Real Estate Investment Trusts. REITs, like all investments, are subject to the loss of principal. Income is not guaranteed. Some investments require minimum net worth or income amounts and not all investors will qualify.

Join us to learn how real estate investments created and used by large corporations, endowments and institutions are structured to potentially provide income to their retirees, customers and constituency. These similar investments are available today for individual investors.
